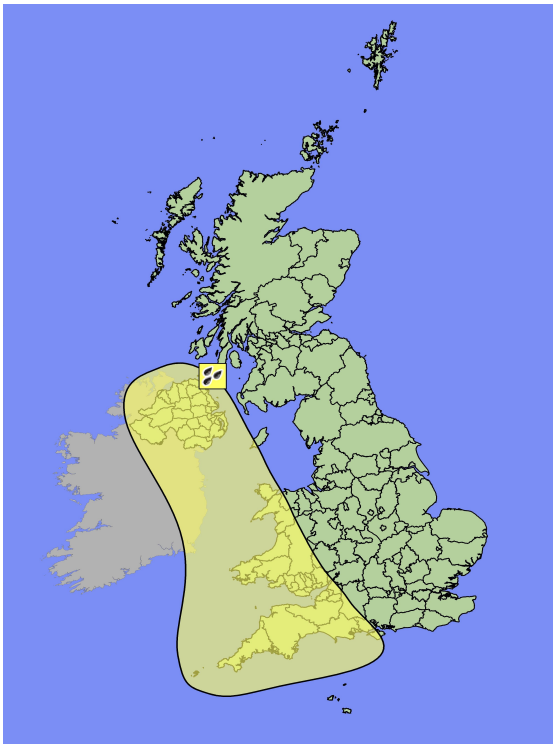
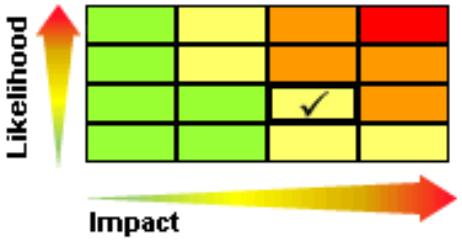
National Severe Weather Warning Service





Chief Forecasters Assessment
Rainfall totals are still somewhat uncertain, but many regions seem likely to see 30-60mm of rain, and in a few locations torrential downpours could bring in excess of 100mm. Presently the most vulnerable areas look to be Cornwall, West Devon, Pembrokeshire and the whole of Northern Ireland.

In Wales and southwest England the heaviest rain is likely to fall during daylight hours, in Northern Ireland it is more likely to be in the evening.

Gusts exceeding 50mph may exacerbate any problems, by leading to leaves and other minor debris blocking drains.

The Met Office have issued a Yellow Warning of Rain

Valid from 00:00 on Mon, 24th Oct 2011 until 23:59 on Mon, 24th Oct 2011

Periods of heavy rain, accompanied at times by strong winds, will affect parts of western Britain during Monday. The public should be aware that quantities of rain may be sufficient in a few places to disrupt travel and give rise to localised flooding. In Northern Ireland the heaviest rain is expected to arrive later in the day.
